The MISSION of Fulton High School

Preparing and Educating for Success

The Four Corollary Questions

Collaborative teams in PLC schools use the four [essential] critical questions of learning to drive their collective inquiry and action research:

1. What do we want students to learn?
(essential standards)
2. How will we know if they have learned?
(team-developed common assessments)
3. What will we do if they don't learn?
(systematic interventions)
4. What will we do if they already know it?
(extended learning)

Our Collective Commitments

1. We are committed to the success and well-being of every student, recognizing all students as our students.
2. We are committed to high expectations for behavior and citizenship. Through our own actions, we will model kindness, understanding, integrity, and respect for our students.
3. We are committed to providing a welcoming and safe environment for all students, parents, staff, and community members.
4. We are committed to providing a challenging, rigorous, and developmentally appropriate curriculum.
5. We are committed to professional growth based on best practices and current research.
6. We are committed to weekly collaboration with our teams to support each other in data-driven decision making to develop instructional strategies and design methods of assessment.
7. We are committed to promoting a supportive environment through positive referrals, parent contacts, and social media communication.
8. We are committed to upholding the building expectations (grades, hall passes, supervision, etc.) for both students and staff.

Faculty Meeting Agendas

The school will be recognized in the community as a valued resource, a positive and safe environment, and a place that provides a quality education for all.

Upon graduating students will be productive citizens and community leaders who are successful and proud, prepared for post-secondary training, and have options and tools for success.

The administration will be respectful, supportive, caring, and consistent individuals with the ability to solve problems and communicate effectively who deal with discipline issues swiftly and appropriately with clear expectations using a team approach that uses all stakeholder resources.

The student-centered faculty will be positive, collaborative individuals who move students toward career goals, serve as resources while providing individualized and directed instruction through easily accessible curricula that incorporates technology in instruction, practice, and assessment to challenge and engage students and meet their current needs for a post-high school life.

The most important criterion for measuring our success will be our graduation and dropout rate, state and federal mandates, college and exit exam scores, as well as the long-term achievement of our students.

Professional Development Plans

It's Professional Development Plan time! Once again, our building has developed three PD Plan options from which our teachers may choose. Teachers are also welcome to create an individual plan based upon personal interests or needs. The building options for the individual teacher PD Goals are:

Schools cannot achieve the fundamental purpose of learning for all if educators work in isolation.
